Please do not remove wolves from the state endangered species list. We all know what will happen if that's done; wholesale killing by ranchers and others will start again and the wolf numbers may be decimated beyond recovery. The females could well be pregnant or nursing and the Alpha males and females are necessary to the survival of any pack. Do the right thing; continue to list them as endangered because that's still the truth. De-listing them will make the situation even more critical.

Thank you.

Please do not remove wolves from the state endangered species list. This is a critical time in the recovering of one of our natives species. Wolves are necessary to maintain the balance of nature and deserve a chance to thrive. There have been no risks to humans and negligible impacts on ranching.

Don't destroy the hard work that has gone into bringing these majestic creatures. Removing them from the endangered species list would set the species back years. Do not undo all the great work that has been done!

Oregon is a special place and the fact that wolves are safe here is important in so many ways. There aren't many safe places for wolves these days, especially in the western states. Protecting them is Oregon's legacy.

I am very unhappy that such a move to delist our wolves is even being considered. Please let our wolves remain under protection and on the state endangered species list.

Thank you for helping to allow the wolves the freedom and protection they need to come back to their glory of yesteryear. Wolves are an important ingredient to the balance of nature. We need them and right now they need you to protect them.

Please do not remove wolves from the state endangered species list.

As apex predators, they are a vital part of the ecosystem. They keep elk and deer populations healthy by removing the weaker members of the herd, allowing the stronger animals to survive and breed. By keeping ungulates on the move, wolves also help keep forage plants healthy by preventing overgrazing and erosion. This is important on both private and public lands. Public lands are "owned" by all Oregon residents, not just by those who graze their domestic animals there -- at less-than market-value prices. I'm sure that many Oregonian agree with me that wolves are necessary in our state.

Please keep wolves on the state endangered species list.

Thank you.

Please do not remove wolves from the state endangered species list. There are more than enough deer and elk to go around between the alpha predators (hunters) and the wolves. The forest ecology is dependent on wolves and any reduction right now in their numbers would be very harmful. Do not delist them just to make hunters or ranchers happy.

These animals have just started to make a comeback. If they aren't provided continued protection under the endangered species list, their populations will continue to decline. Wolves play an incredibly useful role in the ecological balance of wildlife. Please allow them to thrive and do not take action to delist them.

Please do not remove wolves from the state endangered species list. It has taken so long to reinstate them in our beautiful state and they have not been such predators that we need to decimate their numbers again. Their primary prey are the deer, elk and smaller game animals. They only take domesticated animals when they are conveniently unguarded and not properly penned. Humans have taken over both their land and the animals they use for survival, then blame them for encroachment. The wilderness is large enough for both us and these magnificent animals. Keep them safe until good cause is shown that they are actually a hindrance rather than a help to the ecosystem. Thank you for reading this.

Wolves have only recently begun to recover in Oregon. Their numbers are still precariously low, and to regain their position in the ecosystem (which they were hunted out of due to human short-sightedness), they need the protection of being on the endangered species list.

We owe it to wolves and to ourselves to do all we can to redress our past mishandling of wildlife. It's up to us. I urge you to keep wolves on the state endangered species list.

Wolves need to stay on the state endangered species list. There are so few of them in Oregon once they are delisted some gungho hunters will happily shoot them and send us back to the drawing board of re-listing them. Please do not make that happen. The Oregon Fish and Wildlife Department needs to do its job and protect our wolves! These beautiful animals deserve their life in our wild lands!

Please do not remove wolves from the state endangered species list. There have been so many wolf slaughters in the last year in other western states in spite of their being listed on the Endangered Species list. I shudder to think what the wholesale slaughter of wolves will be like if they are delisted in Oregon.

Wolves have proven that as a top predator they are invaluable to the health of the environment in which they live. Why is this not clear to people constantly threatening to delist them?

As a 65 -year resident of Oregon, I am distressed by the possibility of killing these natural predators which were here long before we humans here, who moved in and killed them off because they interfered with human development.

We need to protect the re-introduction of this endangered species. Let's balance ALL life in Oregon. There's room for all.

Please do not remove wolves from the state endangered species list.

Please do not remove wolves from the state endangered species list. Their populations are still recovering, and there are ways of mitigating the damage they may do to ranchers without having to kill them. Wolf packs depend on the alpha leaders, and wolf kills often focus on eliminating those important animals. Please do not delist wolves.

Please do not remove wolves from the state endangered species list!

Wolves have not made enough of a recovery in Oregon to be taken off the endangered species list!

The ranchers who are using our public land for their herds, who are often the ones objecting to the presence of the wolves, need to understand that our public land includes the animals who naturally live there, and that includes wolves!

Our public land belongs to all of us in Oregon, not just those who have their herds feeding there, and I very much want wolves on my public lands!

In Oregon we have had the blessing of following OR7 and his young family, and it's horrible to think that harm would come to them because they are no longer on the state endangered species list!

(And just think what bad publicity it would be to have to announce to the watching world that OR7 or his family were killed because we took them off Oregon's endangered species list!)

We only need to look at the states around us to see how many wolves are brutally killed because they no longer have any endangered species protection!

Please do not take wolves off of the endangered species list!

The endangered species list is all that stands between endangered and extinct!

Oregon has fewer wolves than Yellowstone and it is a much, much smaller area and they have had a longer time to recover. Do not let a few with money, ranchers, have their way. I saw a video how wolves, once reintroduced, helped revitalize nature in a large National Park, they helped with elk overpopulation and over browsing which started flora regrowing, which resulted in riverbanks being better protected, which helped bring back other mammals like beavers which helped change the course of the rivers, then more rodents, reptiles, birds, and fish came back and all thrived because wolves were reintroduced.

Our wilderness needs wolves.

Also helps to keep our forests balanced. Our future generations need to be able to learn and know of real lives wolves in their own habitat. Protection of Wolves is the utmost importance to keep them on the Protection list. We have so much to learn from wolves when they live in packs and take care of their young. Please do not remove wolves from the state endangered species list. They are so important to our ecological system. Look how they contributed to Yellowstone. Tree and vegetation came back cause they keep other animal in check with population. Wolves have a short life just do to their habitat. Look at what happening in Alaska? The population in down to almost nothing and all the studies show that once they come off being endangered they die off very quickly. Hunters still shoot them even when on endangered list and they have no repercussions . More live stock die giving birth or weather conditions and they are sold for butchering anyway. So if a wolf happen is to take live stock the rancher get his money anyway. Wolves need their family group. Please please leave them on the endangered list!

Please do not remove wolves from the state endangered species list. Our wolves are just beginning to recover. As you know, they are a very important part of healthy ecosystems.

There are a few strident voices calling for their removal from the endangered species list, but it is important to remember that the tiny number of losses that impact livestock owners are dwarfed by losses from weather, disease, and other causes. The profile of any losses from wolves is kept artificially high by these folks, and often connected to political convictions of distrust of government that actually have nothing to do with wolves.

Hunters, another group some of whom are calling for delisting, will still have plenty of elk and deer to hunt with wolves in the landscape.

Please to not give in to unscientific opinions that will give people license to kill these animals with impunity. Oregon's wolf program so far is the best in the country. Don't change what works. Keep management of wolves with the purview of Fish and Wildlife, protecting both the wolves and the agency's power to manage them by keeping them on the state endangered species list. Please do not remove wolves from the state endangered species list. They are key to our ecological system and so much negative information regarding them is incorrect and slanted. They have done no wrong.... they are just doing what they were put on the Earth to do..... keep the system balanced.

It is us humans and our decisions that has upset the balance.... not the wolves! PLEASE LET THEM PLAY THEIR PART!

Please do not remove wolves from the state endangered species list. I do not believe there will be any recovery if the wolves protection is removed. I know the cattlemen and sheep herders are against saving the wolves. However they are not the only people in Oregon who pay taxes. The rest of us pay out the nose also. Wild horses are also bearing the brunt of the people who want our public lands for private gain. This is unfair to the rest of the population who far out number the ranchers. Ranchers need to keep better look out for their animals. Everything should not be done to favor them as opposed to the rest of us. I do not see our state or federal government giving me land, food, or money to help support the 22 horses being taken care of by our 501c 3. But I do see you rounding up herds of Mustangs to help the cattle ranchers. Find a way to be fair and stop choosing one side over the other.

I'm ashamed that I live in a state/country where some humans consider wolves (and other wild animals) a threat - to themselves/livelihood, etc. Maybe we need to have a little more respect for them as God's creatures, also, and stop encroaching on their territory. They WERE here first!!!

I am writing to request that you do not remove wolves from the state endangered species list.

This is an important issue for our state. Our ecological balance must be maintained, particularly as we face climate changes.

The listing of wolves is particularly important as derelict hunters kill them.

Thank you for taking my opinion into account.

Wolves may seem like predators, but even they need our protection from a host of human activity. Hunting, habit destruction and climate change have vastly changed their ability to survive on their own.

Please do not remove wolves from the state endangered species list. It's been proven that we need them to maintain nature's balance. If you were to removed them from the endangered list there would be a bunch of hunters out there right away creating the issue all over again. Then the foragers would begin to increase in numbers and plant life would suffer. Please, just let nature alone.

The numbers of wolves have not increased significantly to insure their recovery. Wolves need protection and are vital to the health of the environment. Scientific studies show that when wolves are present in an environment, the health of the other species increases. They help the survival of plants and trees that would be devastated by deer and elk's grazing.

Wolves are part of our U.S. natural heritage. I want there to be wilderness when my grandchildren and their offspring grow up. They must be able to experience the Wild American heritage, as I did when I was young.
Do NOT delist wolves. Educate, instead, the ranchers, farmers and other Americans by explaining how all healthy ecosystems can benefit from a strong wolf population.

Please do not remove wolves from the state endangered species list. It is a proven fact that large predators strengthen and promote healthier wildlife. Further we now know that when the older wolves in a pack are killed off the young wolves do not get the training they need and will kill the easier prey. We need as natural environment for all wildlife as possible. The pack will self regulate although it seems mankind has such a hard time believing the cannot improve upon nature. Sorry, mankind just destroys the balance nature creates, that all beliefs from.

Please do not remove wolves from the state endangered species list. Wolves have not made a complete recovery yet! In addition someone murdered 2 wolves within 50 feet of each other. No one was caught! Also, we had a person shoot a wolf who thought it was a coyote. There is a VERY distinct difference from the two. I believe the pressure to delist the wolf is not science based but caters to the Cattlemen, and ranchers. So this is politics at it's worse! Wolves belong to all of us and you should not cater to special interests. If you delist then their gene pool WILL be compromised. Oregon does not have enough wolves to have a diverse gene pool. Especially when recently hunters and or ranchers have murdered 3 wolves without any penalty. Our state is going "backwards" in it's protection. I would hope you have the real facts and not let politics make your decision for you!

So many species have gone extinct over the years, and I am guessing all of these extinct or animals that are close to extinction could have been prevented if people didn't focus on making a quick buck, and if the politicians cared more about the planet and the creatures that inhabit it rather than giving into special interest groups and the contributions they throw there way during elections. leave the wolves on the endangered list, before it's too late for them to truly make a come back.....
