Subject: I support a stronger wolf plan

Dear Commissioners,

I support the return of wolves to Oregon and their continued recovery. I oppose wolf hunting.

From 2012 to 2015 under a legal settlement, Oregon focused on transparent, defensible, and enforceable standards to prevent conflict and ensure wolf recovery. During that time the wolf population increased and conflict decreased.

Since 2015, poaching, livestock losses, litigation, wolf killing, and other conflicts have increased.

Some interests see killing wolves as the solution to problems and are calling for a weak wolf plan that makes killing wolves easier. Oregon should learn from its own past and from other states. Killing wolves does not resolve conflict. Killing wolves should truly be an option of last resort.

I urge you to honor your mission and strengthen Oregon's Wolf Conservation and Management Plan. Carry forward the parts of the Wolf Plan that worked to reduce conflict and recover wolves. Especially focus on transparency, clear defensible definitions, and enforceable standards to prevent conflict. Fix those parts of the plan that fell short.

I also urge you to reject the hunting of wolves.

Thank you for considering my comments. Let's double down on success, move past recent conflict, and keep recovery on track!

Sincerely,

Denise Lytle

Dear Commissioners,

I support the return of wolves to Oregon and their continued recovery. I oppose wolf hunting.

From 2012 to 2015 under a legal settlement, Oregon focused on transparent, defensible, and enforceable standards to prevent conflict and ensure wolf recovery. During that time the wolf population increased and conflict decreased.

Since 2015, poaching, livestock losses, litigation, wolf killing, and other conflicts have increased.

Some interests see killing wolves as the solution to problems and are calling for a weak wolf plan that makes killing wolves easier. Oregon should learn from its own past and from other states. Killing wolves does not resolve conflict. Killing wolves should truly be an option of last resort.

I urge you to honor your mission and strengthen Oregon's Wolf Conservation and Management Plan. Carry forward the parts of the Wolf Plan that worked to reduce conflict and recover wolves. Especially focus on transparency, clear defensible definitions, and enforceable standards to prevent conflict. Fix those parts of the plan that fell short.

I also urge you to reject the hunting of wolves.

Thank you for considering my comments. Let's double down on success, move past recent conflict, and keep recovery on track!

I am proud to live in a state that has a recovering wolf population.

Sincerely,

Ulrike Streicher

Dear Commissioners,

As an American gravely concerned with thriving biodiversity, I strongly support the return of wolves to Oregon and their continued recovery and stand in opposition to wolf hunting.

I have always been proud of Oregon's transparent policies and genuine goal to ensure wolf recovery. During 2012 to 2015 under a legal settlement, Oregon focused on enforceable standards to prevent conflict and ensure recovery, and during that time the wolf population increased and conflict decreased.

Since 2015, poaching, livestock losses, litigation, wolf killing, and other conflicts have increased. Killing wolves does not resolve conflict. In the 21st century, with our vast history to instruct us, knowledge of wildlife, viable non lethal alternatives available, killing off wolves, will come with a grave price to pay to all who deeply care about thriving ecosystems, ethical and responsible stewardship of wildlife, and future generations of both wolves and us.

I urge you to honor your mission and strengthen Oregon's Wolf Conservation and Management Plan. Carry forward the parts of the Wolf Plan that worked to reduce conflict and recover wolves. Especially focus on transparency, clear defensible definitions, and enforceable standards to prevent conflict, and reject hunting of wolves.

Thank you for considering my comments. Let's make a win win situation for wolves and people - surely we can - move past recent conflict, and keep recovery on track!

Dear Commissioners,

I support the return of wolves to Oregon and their continued recovery. I oppose wolf hunting. We need predators to help balance the "ungulate" populations. Less hunting means more deer and elk. Personally, I can attest that these "vermin", deer and elk are in over abundance in Central Oregon. We need to reintroduce more predators to help control the deer and elk.

Frankly, I am sick of having to reiterate my sentiments, seemingly month after month. Every one I know supports the recovery of wolves. They have a place in our world just as much as cattle, sheep and any other livestock. If ranchers want to run their animals, particularly on public lands, then they need to be prepared to lose some or they need to protect them. I know some ranchers do and they sustain little loss. It is the uncooperative ones who lose the most and complain the loudest! And, worst, the ODWS seems to pander to them. Enough is enough!

Frankly, I am sick of having to reiterate my sentiments, seemingly month after month. Every one I know supports the recovery of wolves. They have a place in our world just as much as cattle, sheep and any other livestock. If ranchers want to run their animals, particularly on public lands, then they need to be prepared to lose some or they need to protect them. I know some ranchers do and they sustain little loss. It is the uncooperative ones who lose the most and complain the loudest! And, worst, the ODWS seems to pander to them. Enough is enough!

Dear Commissioners,

As a long-time supporter of wild places and wildlife conservation, I was thrilled when wolves finally returned to Oregon, and I continue to support the return of wolves to Oregon as well as their continued recovery.

From 2012 to 2015 under a legal settlement, Oregon focused on transparent, defensible, and enforceable standards to prevent conflict and ensure wolf recovery. During that time the wolf population increased and conflicts decreased.

Since the expiration of the 2015 agreement, poaching, livestock losses, litigation, wolf killing, and other conflicts have increased. Culminating, tragically, in the slaughter of the entire Imnaha Pack earlier this year.

Oregon should learn from its own past and from other states. Killing wolves does not resolve conflict. Killing wolves, especially those in such an early and still precarious phase of recovery (after a long period of absolute extermination), should truly be an option of last resort.

I urge you to honor your mission and strengthen Oregon's Wolf Conservation and Management Plan. Carry forward the parts of the Wolf Plan that worked to reduce conflict and recover wolves. Especially focus on transparency, clear defensible definitions, enforceable standards, and non-lethal methods to prevent conflict. Fix those parts of the plan that fell short.

And please reject out of hand the hunting of wolves!

Dear Commissioners,

Please understand the science behind wolf recovery. We cannot protect our environment and our species if we let a few loud voices control our policies while ignoring the research that has produced a small recovery of some of our native predators. Predators belong in the ecosystem. Huge cattle and sheep do not belong in the ecosystem, roaming as though they had no value, but when any predation occurs corporate owners have more influence than the majority of citizens. How did we allow this to happen?

I absolutely support the following statements therefore have also included them with this personal statement.

Wolves are in no way recovered! I am appalled at your at the agency's dishonesty, and failure to conduct the assessment, as is written in the Oregon Wolf Plan, prior to recommending delisting wolves. Unfortunately the agency is blocking public awareness and ignoring scientific evidence, in favor of supporting ranching and sportsmen. The agency is directly responsible for creating an even bigger conflict between both sides of wolf recovery. The public needs to be able to have clear and scientific information; in order to make intelligent decisions on the future wolf population. You have failed your public and your public positions.

Please do this correctly, within written guidelines and with transparency.

From 2012 to 2015 under a legal settlement, Oregon focused on transparent, defensible, and enforceable standards to prevent conflict and ensure wolf recovery. During that time the wolf population grew, by most measures conflict between livestock and wolves decreased, and no wolves were killed.

Since 2015, poaching, livestock losses, litigation, wolf killing, and other conflicts have increased.

Dear Commissioners,

Predators are NOT evolved to sustain human hunting pressures, and further:

The necessary dispersal corridors of Oregon are vital to the recovery of wolves in California - without complete protection in Oregon, California and parts of Nevada suitable to reestablish a population safe from extinction cannot occur.

Thus, Oregon has a duty to the surrounding states to allow the gray wolf to recover within the state, as well as to safely and freely pass through at any season to disperse.

Especially focus on transparency, clear defensible definitions, and enforceable standards to prevent conflict. Fix those parts of the plan that fell short.

I also urge you to reject the hunting of wolves.

Thank you for considering my comments. Let's double down on success, move past recent conflict, and keep recovery on track!

Subject: I support a stronger wolf plan

Dear Commissioners,

As an Oregon "native" and avid user of Oregon's outstanding outdoor recreational opportunities for more than six decades, I support both the return of wolves to Oregon and their continued recovery and survival. As such a person, your decision to delist wolves saddened me, as would a decision to allow wolf hunting.

As you know, Oregon focused on transparent, defensible, and enforceable standards to prevent conflict and ensure wolf recovery from about 2012 through 2015. During that time the wolf population increased and conflict seemed to decrease. Unfortunately, since 2015, poaching, livestock losses, litigation, wolf killing, and other conflicts have increased.

As you know from those who press for weaker protections for wolves, some vocal people and groups see killing wolves as the solution. It would seem that Oregon's experience (even if over a short time period) and the longer experience from other States would seem to show that killing wolves does not resolve conflict. Killing wolves should truly be an option of last resort, not the first.

As a concerned citizen and avid user of our Oregon outdoors, I strongly urge you to honor your mission and strengthen Oregon's Wolf Conservation and Management Plan. Please continue (or strengthen) the parts of the current Wolf Plan that worked in reducing conflict while fostering wolf recovery. Please focus on transparency, clear defensible definitions, and enforceable standards to prevent conflict, and work to fix those parts of the plan that fell short.

As already mentioned, I also urge you to rebuff certain special interests and reject any form of wolf hunting.

Thank you for your work in trying to find a path forward that protects and encourages wolf recovery while moving past recent conflict.

Sincerely,
