The Oregon Hatchery Research Center is a state-of-the-art research facility that provides a unique place for scientists to study native fish recovery and hatchery programs. This self-guided tour map allows you to understand more about what you are seeing on the grounds and in the buildings. We hope you enjoy your visit and come away with a greater understanding of the types of research conducted at this Center.